Why end-to-end matters

Siloed processes limit progress

Disconnected functions and processes are commonplace in logistics, leading to inefficiencies, delays, and missed opportunities. Between independent divisions, disconnected software and outdated methods, many 3PLs encounter challenges that hinder scalability and profit.

The common challenges

Siloed processes

Compliance, sourcing, execution, and payments often function independently, resulting in data loss and communication gaps.

Eroded profit margins

Inefficiencies, delays, and manual errors inflate operational costs.

No real-time visibility

Without a unified system, tracking freight and managing exceptions is chaotic and labour-intensive.

How TEG solves it all

By integrating the entire freight lifecycle into a single, powerful platform, TEG eliminates silos and ensures smooth collaboration across departments.

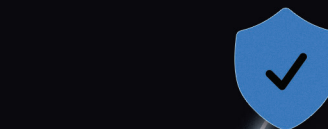

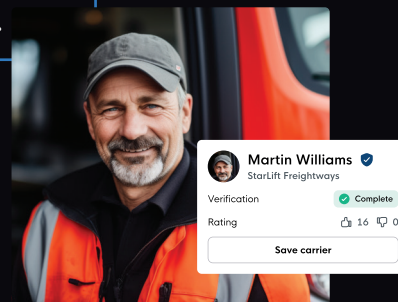

Easily connect to major TMS, telematics or accounting software for enhanced visibility or integrate directly via our open API.

Success story

After securing a major new customer contract, a national, asset-heavy 3PL faced challenges with an inflexible model that struggled with cost pressures and operational bottlenecks. By implementing TEG's integrated solution, they overcame these hurdles with robust compliance standards, on-demand capacity, and attractive payment options.

The results were transformative: carrier onboarding time was reduced from 21 days to an average of six hours, real-time visibility was achieved from collection to proof of delivery (POD), and streamlined operations enabled more competitive pricing on customer requirements. With TEG, the 3PL grew the contract by £14m, expanding their footprint with access to 642 carriers in the first six months, all with zero admin.

TEG helped us respond to growing customer requirements with on-demand access to carriers, supplementing our dedicated fleet operation. Their stringent compliance standards helped us get working faster and unlocked better pricing on key customer lanes.
